

Summary – We're All in This Together

Our motto throughout the pandemic has been, "We're All in This Together," meaning that while we may all be facing our own challenges as a team and a community, we can all get through the darkness together through the support of one another.

We prioritized our communities, customers and team members throughout the pandemic and continued to place them above all. Whether that was supporting our health care workers through various events or displaying yellow pinwheels on our lawns to spread encouragement within our community or even checking on our customers with a simple phone call. With the uncertainty of the pandemic, we knew our team members could also be struggling, whether that be in their home lives or adjusting to remote work. Therefore, we strived to keep morale boosted with fun virtual team activities and competitions, we also started hosting local food trucks at our branches every Friday for team members to enjoy.

We made an impact throughout the pandemic through numerous fundraisers, programs and simple acts of kindness that showcases the importance of us working together with our team, community, and customers to help those who needed us the most.
