

Lamar National Bank built its first new location in 22 years in Celina, Texas. The 8,000 square foot architectural gem was designed by New Ground to represent Lamar's complete commitment to be THE hometown bank of Celina. This flagship branch sits at the corner of the major Preston Road thoroughfare and Pecan Street, the entrance to the historic and charming downtown square.

The design incorporated a technologically advanced community room and new office space to house the Celina Chamber of Commerce.

The new branch is led by Market President Chad Anderson, a second generation community banker, who has made Celina his home for over two decades. Anderson is community leader, elected as the Mayor Pro Tem on the Celina City Council. He has served on numerous non-profit and civic boards, and represents what it means to be a community banker.
